

Are there seats in the class I want?

The best way to find out if there are seats in a class is to access the application program for your student category, complete your student profile, and then click on Prepare Application, Apply for Training, or words to that effect. Each service has a different label. Below is a sample from the DoD application program.

1 2 3 4

1 Identify the course you want

2 Search for classes of that course

3 Go to next slide

4 Identify the course you want

The image displays two screenshots of the ACQTAS (Acquisition Training Application System) web application. The first screenshot shows the main menu with a sidebar on the left containing various functions like 'Apply for Training' and 'Search for Continuous Learning Modules'. A yellow callout box with the number '1' points to the 'Apply for Training' link. The second screenshot shows the 'Search for A Course' page, which includes a 'Search' button and a 'Course' dropdown menu. A yellow callout box with the number '2' points to the 'Search' button. A red callout box with the number '3' points to the 'Search' button. A red callout box with the number '4' points to the 'Search' button. The interface includes a navigation bar at the top with 'Main Menu' and 'Logoff' options, and a footer with 'THIS WEB SITE IS FOR OFFICIAL USE ONLY'.

Are there seats in the class I want?

These columns tell you how many seats are available and how many waits are already in the system.
